China Reds Order 7-Day Cease-Fire

Won't Hinder Unescorted Supply Ships

Peiping Makes Bid
For Direct Peace
Talks With Chiang

TOKYO (AP) — Red China Monday ordered a week's halt in the bombardment of the Nationalist-held offshore islands in Formosa Strait.

The Communists said the move was designed to let supplies reach the besieged islanders "on condition that there be no American escort."

The Reds also called on Nationalist China to negotiate directly with Communist China for an early peaceful settlement.

Since the Red siege began Aug. 23, U.S. warships and planes have been escorting Nationalist craft with supplies for Quemoy up to the three-mile limit.

Radio Peiping quoted Defense Minister Peng Teh-huai as telling the Nationalist Chinese he had ordered the conditional halt out of "humanitarian considerations."

Effective Monday Morning

Peng issued the cease-fire order, effective Monday morning, to the Fukien front, where Communist shore guns face Quemoy.

Peng said that while the bombardment is suspended the Nationalists can ship supplies into Quemoy without hindrance—provided there is no American escort.

The question of a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait has been reported the principal topic for discussions between the U.S. and Red Chinese ambassadors in Warsaw. "We propose that talks be held to effect a peaceful settlement," Peng said.

He addressed his remarks directly to military personnel and civilians on all the islands ruled over by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

"The day will certainly come when the Americans will abandon you," Peng told the Nationalists.

One-People Theme

The Communist defense minister said: "There are flames of war between us. They should be stopped and extinguished. To achieve this, talks are needed."

"Of course, it would not matter so much even if the fighting should continue for another 30 years. It is, however, better to secure an early peaceful settlement."

"The choice is up to you," Peng hammered the theme that the Chinese Communists and Nationalists are one people.

"In the last analysis, the American imperialists are our common enemy," he declared.

"The issue between China and the United States is U.S. invasion and occupation of Taiwan (Formosa), Penghu and the Taiwan Strait, and this should be settled through negotiations between the two countries, which are now being held in Warsaw."

Cease-Fire Order Called U.S. Victory

WARSAW (AP)—Diplomatic observers here Sunday night interpreted Red China's order for 7-day cease-fire in Formosa Strait as achievement of a primary U.S. aim in the U.S.-Red China Warsaw talks.

They said they thought it amounted to a preliminary victory for the United States.

U.S. Ambassador Jacob Beam, American representative in the negotiations with Chinese Communist Envoy Wang Ping-Nan, said he "knew about it as soon as it happened."

He declined to give any details.

Khrushchev Charges Ike "Distortion"

Declares Soviet
Formosa Policy
"Misinterpreted"

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev declared Sunday that President Eisenhower had "wrongly interpreted" Russia's Formosa policy in his news conference last week. He accused Eisenhower of using "tricks" to "distort" the Soviet policy.

Khrushchev, in a statement to the Soviet Tass News Agency, stopped half a step short of accusing the American president of lying.

The Soviet leader asserted that the position of the Soviet Union "is clear and definite" and "is governed by a concern for preservation of peace in the Far East." But he warned again that "an attack on the Chinese People's Republic is an attack on Russia."

"Tricks" Deplored

Khrushchev, referring to remarks made by Eisenhower in his news conference of last Wednesday, said:

"President Eisenhower quite wrongfully interpreted well-known statements of the Soviet government on events in the Taiwan (Formosa) area."

"One can only express surprise at the unceremonious way in which the position of the U.S.S.R. is being distorted. I would never have thought that such tricks would be used."

"I am still sure at this moment that the U.S. President correctly understands our statement on the situation in the Taiwan Straits."

Shuns China Civil War

According to the Tass statement, Khrushchev specifically took exception to this Eisenhower statement:

"If that (the Formosa crisis) is civil war, why then did Russia say through the medium of Mr. Khrushchev's message that she is ready to take part in such a war? If that is civil war, it means that I am at a loss to understand the real meaning of the word."

Khrushchev said that "the clear and definite" Soviet position, as stated in his major Formosa message to Eisenhower, was that Russia would stand by Communist China in case of attack but would not "take part in civil war in China" otherwise.

Giant Footprints Create Mystery

WITCHPEC (Humboldt County), Calif. (UPI)—A construction worker, who said he found tracks of an enormous human foot, 16 inches long and 6 inches wide, in primitive timber country planned Sunday to take pictures of the "abominable mountain man."

Gerald Crews, 40, of Salyer, Calif., said he made a plaster cast of the imprint, which was two inches deep. What puzzles him, however, is that the tracks always lead down a new road but never come back up.

He said that when he first discovered the gigantic prints, he thought it probably was a hoax, perpetrated by Indians from the nearby Hoopa Reservation. But now, he is not so sure. He said he plans to set up a camera with an electronic trip cord and try to make a picture of his "abominable mountain man."

Blast Damage At Clinton School

Liberal Demos Expect Louder Voice In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats who class themselves as liberals apparently are going to have a stronger voice in Senate affairs if their party wins the November election victories they confidently expect.

The party's conservatives seem likely to find themselves more closely matched in numerical strength than they have been in the past if Democrats manage to take some Northern and Western seats away from the Republicans.

A sizeable influx of Democrats who are running on liberal platforms might post some new difficulties for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) in his special field of unifying the Democrats on critical votes.

Johnson, who guides the Senate Democratic machine, has more trouble with the liberals than the conservatives in keeping to the middle of the road where he likes to drive. While he often can cajole them into going along on most questions, the liberals are likely to desert him on issues they regard as paramount.

Since the line between liberals and conservatives is not always clearly marked, there was no exact and unvarying measurement of their strength in the 1958 session of Congress.

Most politicians put the liberal voting strength at about a score among the Senate's 49 Democrats. On what was regarded as a test, Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) got 19 Democratic votes last June when he proposed a six-billion-dollar tax cut over Johnson's opposition.

The liberal lineup changes by issues. Southern Democrats who supported Douglas' bid for a tax cut to counter the economic recession, will of course line up with his bitter opponents when the Illinois senator brings up some civil rights matter.

One immediate effect of any victory of liberal Democratic candidates in the November voting will be to draw tighter the line of opposition around the beleaguered Southerners in their fight for school segregation.

N.Y. Sen. Irving Ives Suffers Slight Stroke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) has suffered a slight stroke, his wife said Sunday.

She said the 62-year-old New Yorker, who is not seeking reelection this year, first complained of not feeling well on Wednesday.

He entered George Washington Hospital Friday noon, and physicians subsequently determined that he had experienced the stroke.

Russian Insists Soviets Have Had No Sputnik Duds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Russian scientist says the Soviets have had no failures in launching Sputniks.

A. A. Blagonravov, member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, was asked during a television interview filmed in Russia and broadcast Sunday whether the Russians would announce it if they failed in an effort to launch a man-carrying Sputnik.

"Up until now," Blagonravov said, "we have had no failures. We hope that we will meet with no failures and all measures are being taken to make the launching of every Sputnik a success."

High Court Will Convene Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court opens its 1958-59 term Monday with a variety of school integration and other problems affecting the delicate race issue still outstanding on its docket.

But the nine justices were expected to confine their first session to a short perfunctory meeting. Admission of attorneys to the high court bar was the only item on the agenda.

During the week, the justices will confer on whether to review or reject some 350 appeals that have come in during the summer. It was expected that a good number of these will be disposed of the following Monday.

The court subsequently will be in hearing oral arguments on cases it accepted last year too late for a full-scale review. Decisions will be handed down later.

Seawolf, 60 Days Under Water, To Surface Today

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—For sixty days the crew of the atomic submarine Seawolf has been waiting to hear Monday's command—"Surface."

Since Aug. 7, the 116 men aboard the Seawolf have been down in the Atlantic's depths. No men have ever lived so long cut off from earth's atmosphere.

The record for submergence was passed long ago when the Seawolf beat the 31-day, 5½-hour record of the Nautilus and passed her own previous mark of 30 days.

Shortly before noon Monday the Seawolf is scheduled to come to the surface about 40 miles off from New London, emerging well in from the rim of the continental shelf. Hatches will open and the men who have made scientific and military history will breathe space vehicles.

Greece's Royal Family Target Of British Fire

LONDON (AP) — Bitter about the shooting of two British women in Cyprus, Britons reacted Sunday with sharp denunciations of Greece—including the Greek royal family.

The murder of one British woman and the wounding of another Friday roused indignation seldom voiced between allies. Officials on Cyprus accused members of EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground, of shooting the women, wives of British servicemen stationed on the island.

Government officials feared the bitterness would undermine the Western defense line in the Mediterranean unless the feeling between peoples of the two North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners was checked.

Last week's outbreaks of violence in Cyprus brought new demands in Britain for reverting to military — rather than civilian — rule of the island and crown colony only four days after Prime Minister Macmillan's government instituted its partnership plan, inviting Greece and Turkey to take part in the administration.

Greece snubbed the invitation; Turkey accepted. Britain went ahead with the plan as a temporary measure until the Cypriots—100,000 Greek-speaking, 100,000 Turkish-speaking — could resolve their differences.

The Greek Cypriots, who look to exiled Archbishop Makarios as their leader, are being blamed for the latest violence. British national newspapers Sunday denounced the bearded archbishop—and Greece's King Paul and Queen Frederika—for their attitude.

Pan American Claims N.Y. To Paris Record

PARIS (AP) — Pan American Airways Sunday claimed a new record of 7 hours, 5 minutes for a New York to Paris flight.

The trip was made in a Boeing 707 jet passenger line on a test flight prior to the start of regular commercial service. Pan American said the plane averaged 541 miles per hour, aided by a 50-mile tail wind.

The flight was about three to four hours faster than the normal run by piston-engine aircraft. It took Charles A. Lindbergh 33 hours, 29 minutes and 30 seconds in 1927.

Integrated Clinton High Dynamited

Governor Offers
Reward, Condemns
Act As 'Cowardly'

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP) — Three quick pre-dawn dynamite explosions wrecked the interior of racially integrated Clinton High School Sunday. Police Chief Francis Moore said, "It was a professional job."

"There's no doubt," he said, "that this dynamiting is connected with integration of the school."

At Nashville, Gov. Frank Clement termed the blasting "a cowardly act" and offered a $5,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for it. Clinton and Anderson County officials also said they would post rewards, amounts to be determined later.

Clement summoned Anderson County officials to Nashville for a conference on the dynamiting.

It was the first sign of violence at the school, nestled in this Cumberland plateau town of 4,000, since sporadic disturbances broke out when nine Negroes first were admitted along with white students two years ago. Clinton is 20 miles northwest of Knoxville in east Tennessee.

16 Classrooms Shattered

The explosions ripped apart 16 of 20 classrooms in the building. Dist. Atty. Gen. J. H. McCarrit, after a personal inspection of the structure, estimated the damage at $300,000. Officials had estimated the 33-year-old building, with several recent additions, would cost at least $800,000 to replace.

The explosives were set off in separate parts of the sprawling brick structure. The blasts shattered walls, cracked support beams, smashed window panes and doors and ripped a hole in the roof.

Classes for 850 white pupils and 10 Negroes were suspended indefinitely.

County Supt. James A. Newman said the Board of Education, which supervises Clinton high, would meet Monday to discuss plans for resuming classes.

The gymnasium was not damaged and some classes may be held in it. Principal W. D. Human said four churches offered their facilities for temporary classrooms.

The Tennessee Bureau of Identification and State Highway Patrol entered the investigation.

Justice Department Shocked
In Washington, Justice Department officials expressed shock over the incident. But Malcolm Anderson, assistant attorney general in charge of the Criminal Division, said "we would have to have a complete official report before making any statement."

Police Capt. Curtis Rosenberg drove by the school moments before the first blast ripped the stillness of the dark. He said the explosions went off at three-minute intervals beginning at 4:21 a.m.

This was the second school blast in Tennessee. A year ago last September the Hattie Cotton Elementary School in Nashville was damaged heavily by a similar explosion. It came shortly after the first grade of some of the capital city's schools, including Hattie Cotton, admitted Negroes and whites together.

Nine Negroes were admitted to previously all-white Clinton High in August 1956, under a U.S. District Court order. This touched off a wave of violent disorders which brought state troopers and national guardsmen to the scene.

During the next several months the Negro section of Clinton was rocked by eight dynamite blasts. Several persons were injured and some property damaged.

11 Enlisted Scientists Will Face Army Court-Martial As Result Of Noisy Party

Adler Chosen For Symphony Director Post

EDGEWOOD, Md. (AP) — The Army has prepared disorderly conduct charges against 11 enlisted scientists as a result of a noisy farewell party for some of their discharged comrades at the Army Chemical Center here.

The soldiers have retained Hyman Pressman, a Baltimore attorney, to defend them at their court martial which is expected to be held in the next several weeks.

The incident came to light Saturday when Pressman said he had called on Army Secretary Brucker "to intervene and prevent the destruction" of enlisted men's morale at the hush-hush Army base.

He indicated the charges grew out of singing anti-Army songs at the party Sept. 25. Army spokesmen and state police said it involved boisterous conduct which drew complaints from a resident near the boat club where the party was going on.

Cpl. L. E. Porter of the Benson State Police barracks said all of the men cooperated during a police investigation except one, Private First Class James P. Bridger, who demanded a civil arrest.

He was tried before Magistrate Harry S. O'Neill at Abingdon in Harford County and fined $25 and costs. The Army reduced him to private following the hearing.

The names of the 11 against whom disorderly charges are to be brought by the Army were turned over to officials of the chemical center by police, Cpl. Porter said no effort was made to break up the party.

If convicted they could receive punishment ranging from a maximum of four months confinement to a simple reprimand, according to Capt. Walter G. Norris, public information officer.

Pressman, who said he is representing the men without fee, told Secretary Brucker that the careers of the defendants, in civilian life as well as in their military service, "are being jeopardized by this senseless court martial."

"Other enlisted men at Edgewood are in a furor," he said.

The men involved are college graduates who are doing scientific work in the Army as enlisted men. Pressman enclosed a 1,000 word letter to him from one of the defendants in which he said it is common practice to hold such parties for departing comrades and present them with "certificates of non-achievement."

He said such parties include "rather well-voiced renditions of boisterous, anti-Army songs, and other such examples of letting off steam."

Pressman told Secretary Brucker that "somewhere in the Army Chemical Center there is a high-ranking officer without a sense of humor who would destroy a soldier's time honored right to gripe against the Army."

400,000 Can Get New SS Benefits; Only Few Apply

BALTIMORE (AP) — Wanted: more than 400,000 persons to start collecting monthly checks and other Social Security benefits.

Uncle Sam has been looking for them since shortly after Congress enacted new Social Security legislation Aug. 28. Besides boosting benefits by about seven per cent, the broadened law made an estimated 425,000 additional persons immediately eligible for some kinds of benefits—mostly old age or disability insurance.

The Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance immediately went to work to tell the public about the new program.

It had 2½ million fact sheets printed for general distribution.

4-H All-Stars Plan Jenkins Memorial

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Maryland Chapter of the 4-H All Stars will establish a memorial to the late Edwin G. (Daddy) Jenkins, 4-H activities in Maryland and a pioneer in the farm youth movement nationally.

The chapter voted at its fall conference Sunday to place the memorial in the National 4-H Club Foundation at Chevy Chase and also one in state headquarters at Hyattsville. Its exact form was not decided.

Maryland's chapter of the All Stars, an honorary service organization of former 4-H members from 16 to 60, was founded by Jenkins in 1921. He was leader in the state and national 4-H movements from 1920 through 1944.

A total of 104 all star members and their guests attended the two-day fall conference of the organization here. Between business sessions they toured the Naval Academy and held a banquet and dance.

It fed informative material to newspapers and magazines throughout the nation.

It prepared 20-second spot announcements for every station in radio and TV.

So what happened? A flood of new applications was expected, but the response so far has been a comparative trickle, say officials at the sprawling bureau headquarters.

For example, the biggest category of new eligibles is the 180,000 or so dependents of totally and permanently disabled workers over 50. The latest check, a bureau official said Sunday, showed only 16,369—less than 10 per cent—had applied for the benefits.

The disabled workers themselves became eligible for disability insurance under a new government program only 15 months ago—provided they worked under Social Security coverage for five of the 10 years before becoming disabled and that 1½ years of this employment was within the last three years.

Now Uncle Sam says the 1½-year-within-3-year requirement is out. You can collect if you're totally and permanently disabled and worked under Social Security for five of the last 10 years—period. So add another 35,000 persons eligible for benefits under the new Social Security.

The other new eligibles, most of whom haven't yet applied, are in the following groups:

60,000—Dependent parents of deceased workers. Congress lifted a restriction which prevented these parents from collecting Social Security payments if benefits already were being collected by the worker's widow or offspring.

50,000—Disabled children over 18 who could not qualify previously because they had to show they received at least one-half of their support from a parent. This requirement has been dropped.

40,000—Disabled workers receiving payments under state workmen's compensation laws or from other sources. Such payments are no longer deducted from the amount payable under the disability insurance program of Social Security.

45,000 — Disabled workers who missed the June 30, 1958, deadline for filing applications to "freeze" their earning records for the entire period of long-standing disabilities. The deadline was set back three years, making it possible for such workers to qualify for disability payments, in some cases immediately.

15,000—Disabled workers, under 50, who can't begin collecting benefits until they reach that age but will be eligible for greater payments if they "freeze" their earnings records now. Such workers may have been employed only part time for the last year or two, but these part time earnings can now be excluded in figuring the average earnings upon which disability payments are based.

5,000 — Widows and other dependents who no longer will be barred from collecting Social Security for disability payments because of remarriage.

Moses Sacks To Resign

One of the proprietors of the first supermarket in the Tri-State area has sold out his interest in the firm and plans to move to Miami, Fla.

He is Moses R. Sacks, 1025 Bedford Street, who opened the Public Service Food Market here in 1932 in partnership with George Ossip. The store was the first in the area of the supermarket type and was located on Baltimore Street.

Sacks has sold his interest in the store, located on North George Street for the past 18 years, to his partner, and his interest in a Public Service store in Cresaptown to Ossip and Harry Stein. Sacks, Ossip and Stein organized the Cresaptown store ten years ago.

A native of Burlington, Vt., Sacks was employed as a buyer and manager of department stores in Johnstown, Pa., before coming to Cumberland in 1932.

A member of Beth Jacob Congregation, Sacks has acted as cantor of the synagogue since coming here. He will make his home in Miami where he has regularly vacationed for 25 years.

Married to the former Miss Mae Robbins of Boston, they have two children, Mrs. Jerry Elfos, Detroit, and Mrs. Daniel Lowy, Washington, Pa., whose husband was rabbi of B'er Chayim Congregation here before going to Beth Israel Congregation, Washington, several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Sacks plan to leave for Miami about November 1.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Your little daughter is naturally charming—encourage her to be by teaching social grace early.

Guide A Little Girl's Charm

Very little girls are enchanting because they are little girls. To suggest teaching them charm sounds silly. But a child must be taught social graces, and it's never too early to encourage and guide her charm toward them.

Take your small daughter to the door to greet visitors from the time she's able to toddle. If she always joins you in a happy welcome, she will never be self-conscious about it, and will want to greet people when she is older.

Q 6—As South you hold:
♠ 2 ♠ 5 3 ♠ 10 6 4 ♠ Q 10 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 heart Double 3 hearts 7
What do you bid now?
A—Three spades. Prospects for game are bright. You have 9 points which is a pretty fair hand for a partner who was able to make a vulnerable take-out double, and you should not permit East's preemptive action to shut you out. Bidding the weak spade suit at this level should not deter you, for North should have good support when he doubles the other major.

Q 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ J 10 8 5 ♠ 5 ♠ Q 7 4 3 ♠ A 10 8 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 heart Double 3 hearts 7

West North East South
1 club 1 heart 2 diamonds Double Pass 3 clubs 3 hearts 7
What do you bid now?
A—Double. Game for your side is by no means certain, especially since a satisfactory fit has not been found. The wisest procedure therefore is to lead the sure profit. Your hand should produce at least three tricks which along with the expected three from partner adds up to the 100 point stink it could be more.

a hostess along with you, and will be experienced at it by the time she makes her first try, on her own.

Meeting people, saying thank you and goodbye gracefully — these are things that grown-ups sometimes admit they find difficult to do. This should never be true, and it can't be for a daughter of yours whom you start early to take social graces charmingly in stride.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q 1—As South you hold:
♠ K Q J 4 3 ♠ K 10 7 5 2 ♠ Q 3 2
Your partner has opened the bidding with one no trump. What is your response?
A—Three spades, and if partner's rebid is three no trump you will bid

Q 2—As South you hold:
♠ A J 9 6 5 ♠ 3 2 ♠ Q 6 ♠ K 10 9 3
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 heart 2 diamonds 3 hearts 7
What do you bid now?
A—Two spades. If North can fit the spades there may be a chance for game in the major suit, and South might just as well try to improve matters for he is prepared to have his partner return to diamonds.

Q 3—As South you hold:
♠ 7 4 2 ♠ A J 9 6 3 2 ♠ A 4 4 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 club 1 heart 2 diamonds Double Pass 3 clubs 3 hearts 7
What do you bid now?
A—Two hearts. While a forward move must be made the hand does not qualify for a jump bid of any kind. Unless partner can bid again there will not be a very good play for game.

Q 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A Q J 10 6 2 ♠ Q 6 2 ♠ 4 ♠ A K 5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 spade 2 diamonds Double Pass 7
What do you bid now?
A—Though your partner wishes to play for a penalty and probably has no support in the spade suit, you should take matters into your own hands and head toward game. The proper rebid is a jump to three spades. A mere rebid of two spades would indicate merely a dissatisfaction with the double.

Q 5—As South you hold:
♠ A K J 7 2 ♠ 8 5 3 ♠ Q J 7 5 4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 spade 2 clubs Pass 7
What do you bid now?
A—The proper call is two spades. Some players will balk at this suggestion on the grounds that this would be a mere preference instead of a raise. It doesn't much matter by what name you call it as partner will realize that you have a fairly good hand from the fact that you first took the trouble to bid two clubs.

W. Va. Senate Foes Clash At Conference

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Democratic and Republican candidates for the U. S. Senate from West Virginia clashed over foreign policy, the recession and new deal legislation in a face-to-face meeting here Sunday.

The occasion was the annual Press-Radio-TV conference of the State Medical Association with senatorial opponents Chapman Revercomb and Robert C. Byrd, and John D. Hohlitzel and Jennings Randolph as featured guest. Some 100 persons attended the political extravaganza, which also included a brief address by Republican State Chairman Daniel L. Louchery. Democratic Chairman Hulett C. Smith, scheduled to attend, was delayed on a visit to Logan and could not be present.

Randolph, a member of Congress from West Virginia's second district from 1933-1946, brought the gathering to one of its high points with a table pounding, shouted declaration that "I was a militant member of Franklin D. Roosevelt's team in the early 1930s."

Randolph, who submitted two questions from the floor like other members of the panel, had been reminded of Hohlitzel's earlier criticism of him for supporting Tennessee Valley Authority and National Recovery Act Legislation and "other socialistic schemes."

However, Randolph said he not only supported the New Deal but President Harry Truman's Fair Deal of the mid 1940s which he said "gave the people by in large the best deal from government they ever had."

Hohlitzel accused his opponent of supporting "big government measures." The Republican incumbent said he does not "believe government should set up regulation of business" as was done under NRA and "I don't believe in public power" as a general principal.

Byrd and Revercomb clashed directly over the Mutual Security Act bill passed by the last Congress.

Byrd, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he voted against it to protest waste, extravagance and maladministration after supporting similar bills for five previous years.

Revercomb said abandonment of the MSA program would "drop the whole idea of alliances with friendly nations" on which this country must presently depend for its defense.

Before answering questioning from the audience, each of the candidates and Louchery made a brief address.

Louchery defined the main issue in the current campaign as whether the Underwood administration is fulfilling its 1956 campaign promises to the extent that can be expected in 20 months.

He said it is being done especially in the area of road building, mental health and efficient state purchasing.

The Bond Market In Inflation

Personal income has climbed to a record high for the third month in a row. Almost concurrently the stock market has reached a new high plateau. In some circles the developments are assumed to be related.

The record-breaking personal income at an annual rate of $355 billion in August was supposedly seeking investment outlets. Some of it went into stocks and the market accordingly soared.

To some degree this assumed cause and effect relationship would seem plausible. But to leave the matter there would oversimplify it vastly. Investment opportunities other than common stocks are obviously plentiful. If it were simply a matter of record-breaking income hunting investment outlets, why didn't new strength appear in the bond market?

In ordinary circumstances small investors would prefer bonds to common stocks which are usually speculative in varying degrees. A matured bond is payable in the amount shown on its face. In contrast, common stocks fluctuate in nominal value with business conditions. From the standpoint of assured face value income investors could therefore do worse than put their money in government bonds.

It just so happens that the Treasury has a few billions worth of securities it would like to sell to somebody. In view of a prospective $12 billion deficit Uncle Sam has become an anxious borrower in a lethargic bond market.

But common stocks are also a dubious haven for capital in any prolonged inflationary cycle. Stocks are no better than the businesses they represent, and in a protracted period of inflation it eventually becomes nearly impossible for any enterprise to stay ahead of its galloping costs.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky
Representatives V. Eggheads

The Americans for Democratic Action (A.D.A.) have latched themselves on to the Democratic Party, although a few of them have infiltrated the Republican Party. They have not organized a political party of their own, for that would have disclosed their weakness. Within the major parties, however, their marginal strength adds to the accumulation of a majority vote.

On that basis they have been demanding increasing recognition from each party. In the recent contest for the Democratic nomination in New York State, they demanded that the Democrats nominate one of their men, Thomas K. Finletter; in Connecticut, they would have accepted either member of the firm of Benton and Bowles. In both states, they failed to force the Democratic Party to accept their candidates.

Now along comes Professor Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., of Harvard University, chief theoretician for the A.D.A., who complains bitterly that the Democratic Party has disturbed "liberal and independent voters" by nominating Democrats. In particular, Schlesinger picks out Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut.

Says Schlesinger:
"I refer to the choice of Thomas J. Dodd over Chester Bowles and William Benton for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in Connecticut (and similar choices in New York and Pennsylvania)."

The professor further says that this is due to a pattern which he describes:
"... It is a revolt of the low-level professional within the party organization against the New Deal and post-New Deal leadership of the Democratic Party. If it continues, it will transform the character of the party and destroy its prospects."

In a word, what shocks Professor Schlesinger is that the Democrats wish to keep and run their own party. He admits, what Republicans have often said about the Democrats, that outsiders, Socialists, Communists, doctrinaire liberals, opportunists and such, have dominated the Democratic Party and that apparently in the year 1958 the Democrats have grown tired of the tail wagging the dog and have taken over.

I do not know what extraordinary qualities Messrs. Benton and Bowles possess that make them, individually or collectively, more suitable than other men to serve in the United States Senate, but I do know that Tom Dodd is a competent and experienced lawyer, that he has served in Congress, that he is knowledgeable concerning the working of our government and that he has a good record of antagonism to Communism over the years.

Apparently Professor Schlesinger, although he teaches American history at Harvard, is not familiar with the operations of American political parties which are quite dependent, for their operational strength, upon the club houses. Schlesinger says:

"I suggest that this revolt began on the lower levels. I doubt whether Carmine DeSapio, the party boss in New York, or John Bailey, the state chairman in Connecticut, would have incited these uprisings."

It would be a weak politician, indeed, who would wait until he had an open revolt on his hands before he listened to the rumblings of the local clubs. He could find himself on the outside, looking in. Even Carmine DeSapio, who has proved his strength in the New York State Democratic organization, would not dare run the risk of a revolt against his judgment. And his judgment is definitely against the extension of A.D.A. influence in the Democratic Party.

Such leaders as DeSapio are usually very responsive to public opinion within the rank and file of their party. And more and more, Democrats have been growing increasingly annoyed at the socialist interlopers who are using their party as a transmission belt to get themselves into public office. It is of no advantage to working, campaigning Democrats to support men who despise the Democratic Party, as for instance, Schlesinger who speaks of the murky lower depths of the Democratic Party in the Northeast. Those "murky lower depths" get the vote out.

It took time for the politicians to get on to A.D.A. tactics of infiltration, but once their techniques were discovered and made clear, the professional adherents in both parties turned on this small cabal of astute operators and began to throw them out. The Democrats this year managed to get rid of quite a few on one ground or another.

Of course, Professor Schlesinger, with customary egghead arrogance, assumes that the A.D.A. crowd has a monopoly on brains. It is too bad that American history was written by so many men who never even saw Harvard.

Blockade-Running Won't Solve Quemoy Problem

By Joseph Alsop

TAIPEI, Formosa

The Washington theory that improved methods of blockade-running are going to solve the problem of Quemoy is obvious wishful drift.

That does not mean, of course, that it is useless to increase the tonnage of supplies delivered to the blockaded offshore islands. As recorded in a previous report, the Communists have made an astonishingly inefficient military showing to date. Hence they have not yet seriously impaired the Quemoy garrison's powers of resistance.

In these circumstances, improved blockade-running can buy time. The time can be used to find better military methods to force the Communists to lift the Quemoy blockade. Or it can be used for diplomacy which will persuade the Communists to lift the Quemoy blockade. But the idea that just buying time will solve the basic problem is like the idea of childishly improvident people that an extension of a loan is just as good as repayment of a loan.

In sum, the basic problem is the blockade. And while the blockade is not lifted, there will be constant and growing danger of a Communist victory on these little islands which the President and Secretary Dulles have solemnly committed the United States to defend.

While the blockade endures, there will always be another constant and growing danger, too. Chiang Kai-shek has sworn that he will not wait forever to send his crack air units to relieve the Quemoy garrison by attacking mainland targets. Whatever its other faults may be, the Chinese Nationalist government does not share the present American government's predilection for big talk followed by big retreats. All the available evidence suggests that Chiang will risk widening the war in an unpredictable manner before he risks defeat on Quemoy.

Anyone who looks at a small scale map of the Quemoy position ought to be able to see why mere improvements in blockade-running will only buy time.

In the first place, even if the Communist military showing continues to be inferior, what can be accomplished by mere blockade-running will always be strictly limited. Big Quemoy island is being supplied by small amphibious landing craft scuttling over open beaches under heavy fire. More landing craft can ease the Quemoy position by putting in more supplies. But even on Big Quemoy, there is no known way to put in enough supplies, so that the garrison will be able to fight back.

On this point, all the American military authorities on the spot are in agreement. The Chinese and the wiser Americans are meanwhile growing more and more concerned about the three other islands in the Quemoy group—Little Quemoy, Erh Tan, and Ta Tan. No landing craft can reach these islands, which have been the targets of nearly half the entire massive Communist bombardment. On these islands, enough damage has already been done to begin to impair the defenses. And these islands are only getting and can only get the merest trickle of supply by air drop.

The Communists do not have to take the whole Quemoy group to win their victory. Let them take just the little Tan islands; and they will amply succeed in making the leaders of the American government look like weak-willed braggarts and feebly false friends in the eyes of every nation of Asia. By the same token, let the Communists merely attack the little Tan islands, and Chiang plans to use his air power against the mainland without regard to the consequences.

In the second place, in addition to the foregoing realistic supply facts, it is necessary to

Baering Down on The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Before the herring-boning of televised capers only two towns had the World Series in October.

And very too often it was only one. With the Bronx playing either Harlem or Brooklyn.

We also remember the Cubs playing the White Sox in 1906 but the two Boston teams never won it the same year. Nor the Philly and St. Looney outfits.

When your town wasn't in it you stood outside a newspaper office and cheered 100-watt electric bulbs on a scoreboard. They slapped some mustard on the deal by ringing a bell for every hit.

If the incognito slap was for distance the bases lighted up in order to frenzied hooyas. And the bell rang continuously for a homer.

Seems incredible that we ever rooted for one of Thomas Edison's lights playing four-cushion caroms on a vertical diamond.

That's the only way we got it except for the usual bulletin board in corner saloons.

The Washington bartender on E street wasn't good at numerals. But he sure could make perfect circles.

Sentiment Shows As Admiral Brown Gives Up Sixth Fleet Command

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — There may not seem to be much sentiment about a sailor. Nor is there much outward sentiment about the cold gray steel of a warship and the men who man it. But there can be. And when a man retires from the difficult job of welding together several thousand men and several hundred warships into a team for the defense of the Mediterranean, it can bring a lump in the throat.

Officers stood at attention on the deck of the USS Des Moines at anchor in the harbor of Villefranche. Overhead flew the flag of Vice Adm. Charles Brown, about to retire as Commander of the 6th Fleet. For two years he had carried the American flag, American forces, and American good will into the ports of Greece, Turkey, Italy, France, Spain, Lebanon and North Africa, working to unite those countries as NATO allies. Now he was leaving for a higher command.

"A ready fleet mad up, as this one is, of a responsive brotherhood, trained, equipped and eager to do the mission assigned to us is like a great musical instrument with an instant response to every touch," Admiral Brown addressed his officers and men. "The time has come when I must say goodbye. I wish it were not so. But there is something inevitable—something inexorable about orders from the Bureau of Personnel."

"It was some two years and two months ago that I broke my flag in the Salem," Admiral

Brown continued with a tinge of sadness in his voice. "It has now been my privilege to command the 6th Fleet longer than anyone else before me. Each of us has his idea of paradise on earth. Mine has been the 6th Fleet. "I am, of course, happy to get a fourth star. But I feel I have already gotten the most that life can ever give to a sailor. Nothing can ever substitute for me the sense of fulfillment and feeling of direct usefulness that has come with the command of this magnificent fleet."

"Two of the happiest years are behind me—and the saddest moment is now upon me. Thank you, good luck, and may God bless you."

"Captain Groverman, haul down my flag."

The Admiral turned to Vice Adm. Clarence Ekstrom, his successor, shook hands, and departed.

American Teamwork

The flight deck of an aircraft carrier, according to Adm. C. D. Griffin of Washington, D. C., is the most dangerous place in the world. It also demonstrates the greatest tribute to American youth.

It is American youth — city boys, farm boys, teen-agers from every state in the Union — who after a few brief months of training operate the flight deck of a carrier with such amazing teamwork that it can launch 32 planes in 11 minutes or four ready planes in seven seconds.

There is noise, hustle and bustle, vibration and more noise, screeching, piercing noise that goes up to 85 to 90 decibels, close to the 100-decibel point which may affect the brain. Men roll on the deck to get away from the scalding hot steam of the catapults as planes are launched. One man jumps out on a catwalk on the bow of the ship, no rail to keep him from falling overboard. He picks up the bridge thrown off by the jet as it shoots off the flight deck. He risks a fall into the sea as if it were a routine, humdrum job.

Blue-shirted plane pushers scurry over the deck, operating little tractors costing $2,000 each which tow Skywarrior twin jet bombers costing $4,000,000 each. The plane's wheels go right up to the edge of the flight deck; another 12 inches and the plane would slide over the side. But the plane-pusher, R. S. Doty of New York, tows the bomber with the nonchalance of having done it in his sleep. Actually he hasn't done it long. He's 18 years old, is an airman apprentice, gets paid $90 a month for handling planes worth $4,000,000.

"How did you learn this job?" Doty was asked.

"By sitting on the tractor with another guy for a couple of weeks while he did this."

Yet he makes no mistakes.

Re-Enlistment Problem

The flight deck of the Forrestal, one of the biggest carriers in the world, is 1,036 feet by 252 feet and covers four acres. She cost $200,000,000, carries 87 aircraft worth $100,000,000, pays out $1,300,000 monthly to the 4,000 hands aboard. The Forrestal is the flagship of Admiral Griffin, who feels that the best way to find out how his big twin-engine jet bombers work is to fly them himself.

Skipper of the ship is Capt. Allen H. Shinn of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., while the executive officer is Cdr. Pierre Charbonnet, in whom I take some personal pride because I helped get him into Annapolis through the courtesy of then Congressman Wesley Disney of Oklahoma. . . . Biggest man on the Forrestal is the ship's cook, E. E. Cade of Birmingham, Ala., a 42-year-old six-footer who weighs 325 pounds. At sea for 13 out of 16 years of service, he is still trying to reduce. He told the ship's doctor, Cdr. R. Luehrs, he had lost eight or nine pounds the other day. When the doctor asked him how he knew this since there were no scales aboard big enough to weigh him, Cade replied: "I feel like I'd lost that much."

Tallest sailor is Signalman E. L. McDonnell of Gloster, Miss., who is six feet five and a half inches, and says he has no trouble getting into his air-conditioned bunk. . . . Smallest sailor is 18-year-old seaman apprentice J. R. Johnson of Newport News, Va., who grew up at Harmon Air Force Base where his father is serving in the Air Force. . . . Oldest man aboard is 59-year-old Chaplain Ed Faye of Philadelphia. . . . They take pride in their work and their ship. But not many of the youngsters re-enlist. They receive intensive training, do an excellent job, then return to civil life. "The Navy today is made up largely of transients," says Admiral Brown. "Here today and gone tomorrow — both enlisted men and junior officers alike. It's the biggest problem the Navy faces."

Mack trusted nobody. Not even himself. . . .

He was a little man with a big ego and a onesided smile. Nobody, he was fond of saying, ever did nothing for nobody. He worked hard as a maintenance man in a big oil refinery and he brought sandwiches and saved his money. When he had enough, he married a girl who looked good and stupid and who had a little money of her own.

Mack had it made. Her money and his money made a nice down payment on his house. After the honeymoon, he had a little heart-to-heart chat with Mazie and he told her that, from now on, he would do the thinking for both of them. All household bills would be called to his attention. For herself, she would expect $4 a week and he would not expect her to buy her clothes with it, but he didn't want it squandered, either.

She voted his way. She thought about the things he wanted her to think about. She adored Mack because he did too. When he said: "No children. We can't afford them," Mazie gulped and said: "Yes, Mack." At the oil refinery, he laughed at men who had trouble with their wives.

"Break 'em in right," said Mack, "and you have no trouble."

He knew how to teach her a lesson too. When one phone bill was too high, Mack had the phone yanked. That taught Mazie that when Mack said something, he meant business. From that time onward, when he warned her about something, she shook for hours afterward.

Mack was a happy man. He manicured his lawn; he did his own carpentry; he did his own plumbing. He almost electrocuted himself changing a 110-volt line over to 220, but he saved a few dollars. The fellows at the oil refinery wanted him to join their bowling club, but Mack was too smart for them.

He knew that it was just a beer-drinking racket at a quarter a game. What for? To throw a sixteen-pound ball down an alley? Nothing doing. He told the fellows that they were nuts. No one was ever going to pull the wool over Mack's eyes.

One day a watchman told him that Mazie had a boyfriend on the side. Mack laughed so hard that his stomach hurt. When his stomach stopped hurting, his heart hurt. He began to think about it. There was a boy in the neighborhood who used to do odd jobs for Mack at a dime a job. Mack asked the boy if any stranger ever stopped to see Mazie during the day.

"The kid thought about it. 'Well,' he said, 'my mother said she'd kill me if I opened my mouth, but the milkman takes about an hour every morning to drop the homogenized at your place. Everybody knows about it—except you.'"

Mack seethed. He had spent every waking moment trying to keep the world from outwitting him and now he had been foxed by a woman who meant no more to him than a down payment on a house. Besides, she was stupid. He had made sure of that during the courtship by devoting one whole evening trying to teach Mazie how to play Chinese checkers. She had been unable to comprehend it.

He didn't love Mazie, but she was a good buy. She worked hard in the house; she did his laundry; she saved money for him; she gave him the adulation he needed; she was obedient to the point of terror.

The watchman had said she had a boyfriend. The kid had said it was the milkman. Mack didn't need any more evidence. One morning he watched Mazie making his sandwiches. When she was finished, he said: "I'm not going to work today." She seemed surprised.

"Stop looking goggle-eyed," Mack said. "I know all about everything. Do you love the guy who's been seeing you?" Mazie looked as though she would collapse. Her head nodded dumbly. "Yes," she whispered.

Mack cackled. "Does he love you?" She nodded. Mack went into the broom closet and got a mop handle and unscrewed it. "I'm dying to meet your boyfriend," he said casually.

Mack waited inside the back door. When the milkman arrived, Mack beat him insensible, broke his nose, and kicked his ribs. It was a good job all right. But the milkman sued. And Mack no longer owns a house or a wife. The man he almost killed was the substitute milkman. . . .

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Gil Hodges remembers a day during the 1947 World Series when a rookie pitcher was the surprise nomination, and promptly walked four Yankees in a row in the first inning. The manager, Burt Shotton, hurried to the mound and asked, "What's the trouble, boy?" "Not a thing," he countered cheerfully. "I'm just pacing myself." Burt took the ball out of his hand and said, "That's just fine. Now go to the clubhouse and pace the floor."

COFFEE AND HAY FEVER

M. W. writes: Will drinking four or five cups of coffee a day during the hay fever season increase the victim's discomfort?

REPLY

Only if it interferes with sleep or aggravates congestion in the nose and throat. This would be unusual, as this amount of coffee generally has no adverse effect on hay fever.

Warren Spahn Blanks Yankees, 3-0, With Two-Hitter

Braves Grab 3-1 Edge In 1958 Series

Schoendienst Stars In Field; New York Defense Is Shaky

NEW YORK (AP)—Crafty Warren Spahn left the New York Yankees cliff hanging by their finger nails Sunday, with his Milwaukee Braves needing only one more victory to clinch their second straight World Series.

The 37-year-old left-hander, an Oklahoma cattle rancher in the off season, choked off the American League champions 3-0 with only two hits—a triple by Mickey Mantle and a single by Bill Skowron.

The Yankees, trailing 3-1 in games, now find themselves in most desperate straits. Only once has a team come back to win a seven-game series after losing three games. That was Pittsburgh against Washington in 1925. Earlier the 1903 Boston Red Sox had made a similar recovery against Pittsburgh in a best-of-nine set.

Defense Is Shaky

Shaky defensive play by left-fielder Norm Siebern who faltered, stumbled and failed to catch four balls in his area contributed to Whitey Ford's downfall. The young man had such a rough day in the sun field that some of the 71,563 fans grumbled "take him out." When he finally grabbed Johnny Logan's long fly for the last out in the ninth, there was a rousing cheer.

Spahn simply was superb in turning back the Yanks for the second time in this series. He was sharper than he was on opening day when he bested Ford and Ryne Duren in 10 innings 4-3.

For the knockout punch in Monday's fifth game at Yankee Stadium, Manager Fred Haney has Lew Burdette, his Yankee-killer, who has beaten the club four straight times. He will be opposed by Bob Turley, who was pounded by the Braves on the way to their big seven-run first inning in the second game.

Among the casualties of Spahn's skillful effort was Hank Bauer's record 17-game series hitting streak. The ex-Marine who drove in all New York's runs Saturday in their only victory, popped up once and grounded out three times.

On Even Terms

Spahn and Ford battled along on even terms for five scoreless innings. In fact, Spahn didn't allow a hit until Mantle slugged a rousing triple to the auxiliary scoreboard in left with one out in the fourth.

Red Schoendienst saved Spahn at this juncture when he leaped high for Yogi Berra's fast-dying line drive. Red couldn't hold the ball, juggled it and finally let it drop to the ground. He quickly recovered and, on one knee, whipped the ball to first in time to get Yogi Berra sliding in belly whopper style.

Milwaukee broke through Ford—or rather through Siebern—for a tainted run in the sixth inning. Siebern had hesitated on a ball hit by Del Crandall in the fifth but Mickey Mantle backed him up in time to hold the damage to a single.

This time there was no rescue. Schoendienst led off the sixth with a drive to left center. Siebern started after the ball as though to make a running catch. At the last second he pulled up, apparently thinking Mantle was going to get there in time. He didn't, the ball rolled to the wall for a triple.

Kubek Makes Error With the infield pulled in to cut off the run at the plate, Johnny Logan rapped a sharp grounder at Tony Kubek. The Yankee shortstop, hitless in 13 at bats, let the ball hop through his legs. Schoendienst romped home with an unearned run.

Now it was the seventh and the Yanks, now trailing 2-0 just managed to get their second hit—a single by Skowron. But they couldn't help themselves.

Del Crandall, who led the Milwaukee nine-hit attack with two singles, drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch. Wes Covington flied out but Andy Paiko doubled on a curling drive to right center that fell between Mantle and Bauer.

Spahn dunked a short fly to left. In came Siebern. Then he pulled Spahn's first pitch. Kubek lined to up. The ball fell in for a single Mathews. Ford was called out on and Spahn had a run batted in as Crandall scored.

PAIR OF HAPPY HEROES—Milwaukee's Red Schoendienst, left, and Warren Spahn are a happy pair after yesterday's World Series victory for the Braves. They are shown together in the dressing room after Spahn's pitching held the New York Yankees to two hits and a 3-0 shutout. It was Red's triple in the sixth inning which set up Milwaukee's first score and his sparkling stop of a hard smash by Yogi Berra that stopped a Yankee rally in the fourth. (AP Photofax).

Rams Roll To 33-3 Win Over 49ers

Wade And Arnett Star In Triumph

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bill Wade's passes and Jon Arnett's running rolled Los Angeles to its most decisive football league victory ever over San Francisco 33-3 Sunday as a "red dogging" defense throttled the 49er attack.

A throng of 59,826 saw Arnett break away on key runs and Wade find the passing range late in the first half. Wade engineered an 80-yard touchdown drive scoring with a 17-yard pass to Del Shofner, breaking a 3-3 deadlock.

The Los Angeles Rams left the field at half time leading 10-3 after limiting San Francisco's 49ers to 21 total net yards in the first half.

On the first running play of the third period, 49er fullback Joe Perry ran four yards and thus surpassed the NFL lifetime rushing record of 5,860, but after that it was all the Rams.

The defense by George Strugar, Frank Fuller, Les Richter, John Houser and Lou Michaels smashed back 49er plays. The hard charging defense accounted directly for eight points—two by chasing quarterback Y. A. Little out of the end zone for a safety and six when Michaels intercepted a Little pass out of the end zone for a safety and six when Michaels intercepted a Little pass at the 49er 6 and scored.

Paige Cothren booted a 24-yard field goal and kicked four conversions.

San Francisco's only score was Gordy Soltau's 22-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Los Angeles: 3 7 9 14—33
San Francisco: 0 3 0 0—3
Los Angeles: TD, Shofner (17 pass from Wade), Lundy (18 pass from Wade), Michaels (6 pass interception), Wilson (3 run), PAT, Cothren 4 FG, Cothren (24) Safety. Little stepped out of end zone. San Francisco: FG, Soltau (22).

Yankees Favored In Fifth Game

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Yankees are favored at 13-10 to beat Milwaukee Monday in the fifth game of the World Series, with Bob Turley pitching for the Yanks and Lew Burdette for the Braves.

However, with Milwaukee leading three games to one, the Braves apparently have become a prohibitive "5 and out" bet to take the best-of-seven series.

Early action Sunday indicated that bookies would accept no more Milwaukee money on the total series, but would offer 5 to 1 on the Braves against anyone wishing to bet on the Yanks.

For Monday's game the bookies were "laying" 6-5 on the Yanks and "taking" 7-5. That made the man-to-man price 13-10.

Raines Hurls Barrelville To Pen-Mar Title

Old Exports Down Zihlman, 6 To 2

Bobby Raines hurls the Barrelville Old Exports to their fifth title-winning effort yesterday when he stopped Zihlman on five hits, 6-2, in the fourth game of their best-of-five playoff series at Barrelville.

The win was the third in a row for the Old Exports who last week played a 15-inning 5-5 tie with Zihlman after copping the first two decisions, 3-1 and 3-2.

Barrelville hopped off to a two-run lead in the second inning and was never headed, banging out 13 hits to back up Raines' 12-strikeout pitching.

Galen McGregor had three hits to pace the Old Export attack while Raines, Harold Hudson and Pooch Lewis each chipped in with a pair of bingles.

Barney Spearman with a double and single and Johnny Johnson with two singles shared four of Zihlman's five hits.

Lashbaugh, who was relieved by Tommy Richards in the seventh frame, took the loss. The score:

Plum passed for two touchdowns and Brown scored three, two of them on runs of 23 and 59 yards. Plum's substitute, Jim Ninowski, passed to Preston Carpenter for a final TD in the last period.

Lou (The Toe) Groza kicked a 32-yard field goal and converted six times to account for nine points.

Plum connected on 13 of 14 passes to roll up 197 yards. Brown carried the ball 17 times for 129 yards.

Lions, Packers Play 13-13 Tie; Eagles Whip Giants, 27-24

Two Fumbles Hurt Chances For Detroit

Layne Misses Extra Point Try; Green Bay Outplays Lions

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The defending champion Detroit Lions fumbled away two scoring opportunities and missed a 13-yard field goal—all in a wild and woolly fourth period—for a 13-13 standoff with the underdog Green Bay Packers Sunday in a National Football League game.

Bobby Layne, who usually doesn't miss, muffed a second quarter extra point try that could have given the Lions the victory, despite an unimpressive performance.

Outplayed by a wide margin by Green Bay in the first half, the Lions took advantage of an intercepted pass and a 15-yard penalty for their tying touchdown in the third period.

Gary Lowe picked off Bart Starr's pass on the Packer 41, and the penalty on the play put the ball on the Green Bay 26. Five plays later Ken Webb crashed into the end zone after taking a pitchout from Layne, who then took his time and kicked the important extra point.

Tobin Rote, the former Packer, played the first half for Detroit and didn't get them a touchdown until midway in the second period when he passed to end Jim Doran for 65 yards. Layne's extra point try barely got off the ground.

The Packers' Starr, playing on a bad ankle that finally benched him in the fourth period, took the Packers on two long scoring drives in the first half. In the first quarter, they went from their own 34 to the Lions' seven where Paul Hornung kicked the first of two field goals.

In the second, after Detroit had taken the lead on Rote's pass to Doran, Starr tossed 40 yards to end Max McGee for the Packers' only touchdown. Hornung completed the Packers scoring with a 20-yard field goal in the final minute of the first half.

Green Bay 3 10 0 0-13
Detroit 0 6 7 0-13

Green Bay: TD, McGee (40, pass from Starr); FG—Hornung 2 (15-20); PAT—Hornung.
Detroit: TD, Doran (65, pass from Rote); Webb (4, run); PAT—Layne.

The score was 7 and 6. Miller also captured the spring handicap title this year after winning last season's fall crown. Pinto was the club's first fall champion in 1956 and also won the 1957 spring tourney. Miller toured the first 18 holes of the 36-hole playoff in 77 to Pinto's 80 and wrapped up the victory when both halved the 30th hole.

Navy's Air Arm Works To Perfection Against BC

Middies Roll To 28-14 Triumph

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Joe Tranchini served up an extra large order of ham to go with the eggs and Navy's football squad had itself a tea party at Boston University Saturday.

Coach Eddie Erdelatz had complained that Navy had only eggs—his term for running with the ball—against William and Mary on account of the weather in the first game.

With a dry ball, Tranchini put on one of the best passing performances in Navy history during the 28-14 victory over Boston U.

Elsewhere among college football teams in the state, John Hopkins had a pleasant opening with a 20-0 victory over Franklin & Marshall. Maryland dropped a tough 8-0 decision to Clemson. Western Maryland lost 13-0 to Penn Military and Morgan was downed 14-7 by North Carolina College.

Tranchini, a junior from Clairton, Pa., completed 18 passes to tie an academy record set by George Welsh in 1955. They were good for three touchdowns and a total of 221 yards.

Navy had an easier time beating Boston than the score might indicate. The first team played only half the game and Navy had 20 of its points by the intermission.

Boston's second touchdown came just before the game ended against the last of 41 Navy players.

Maryland's second defeat in three games could be attributed to lack of experienced depth as much as anything. It had all the best of Clemson in the first half, but the first troops shot their wad in the third quarter.

They stopped Clemson on their 21 and 4 yard lines. The second unit came in then and Clemson's Harvey White promptly threw a 50-yard scoring pass to Wyatt Cox.

Three of Maryland defending backs were sophomores. The Clemson pass play wasn't new to them. Coach Tommy Mont said he had them practice against it all week.

Maryland moved the ball fairly well in a new formation of unbalanced line and this year's lad, the linesome end, Bob Layman got away around the weak side of the line for a 54-yard run in the second quarter. With fourth down and five yards from the goal, quarterback Bob Rusevyan tried a field goal and missed.

John Hopkins' triumph was its first in an opener since 1949 so it may be in for a creditable season. Oz Garcia, a 150-pound tailback, led the show with two touchdowns.

Next Saturday's schedule brings Texas A & M to Maryland, sends Navy to Michigan, Johns Hopkins to Ursinus, Western Maryland to Randolph-Macon and Morgan is at Maryland State.

Too much Penn Military defense stopped Western Maryland's bid for its second straight victory of the seasons. The Westminster collegians were held to 67 yards rushing and 5 by passing. They never got more than 10 yards across midfield.
